

Dewayne Hall

Homesteading on a budget

"Don't expect what you are not willing to inspect"

BASED
Tulsa, Oklahoma

FEE RANGE
500 - 1,500

Dewayne is a national speaker on all things homesteading from wildcrafting to animal husbandry. He graduated from East Texas A&M and has spent a lifetime teaching and learning. Dewayne's education started at an early age with his grandfather passing on generations of knowledge such as wood skills, edible and medicinal plants, and how to hunt, fish, and live in harmony with the land and animals. Dewayne then went on to spend a short time on the Navaho Reservation learning many of the Navaho native ways. After graduation from college he went on to manage a 52-section ranch in west Texas, then to teach Agriculture and Biology for several years. While teaching Dewayne raised sheep, horses, cattle, and grew their own hay and grain, and formulated his own livestock feed. After retiring, Dewayne came full circle back to teaching edible and medicinal plants, and small-scale natural agriculture. In 2016, Dewayne and his wife purchased an abandoned farm. They are now in the process of building a sustainable teaching farm to pass along Dewayne's years of experience and knowledge along with new more sustainable conservation practices. At the forefront of Red Feather Farms, you will find

Signature Talks

No. 01 Controlling Parasites in Goats & Sheep

No. 02 Goat & Sheep Management and Husbandry

BOOKING & PRESS
RedFeatherFarmsok@gmail.com

Dewayne-Hall.doorstone.press
Facebook